A Palomino Dry White Sherry wine from Jerez, Andalusia, Spain

Review by Luis Gutierrez

Wine Advocate # 208 (Aug 2013)

Rating: 91

Drink 2013 - 2015

Cost: $75

The NV Villapanes Oloroso wears a dark amber-brown robe and has a very intense nose, showing some marmalade, dark tobacco and brandy notes. The palate is textbook Oloroso, round, ample, warm, a little spicity, ending with dry walnut flavors. It manages to balance power and elegance quite well. Drink 2013-2015. Emilio Hidalgo founded his bodega in the center of Jerez in 1874, where it is still managed by the fifth generation of the family. They have an impressive range of wines, with some of the original soleras containing wines over 100 years old which are offered in homeopathic quantities (like their superb Palo Cortado and PX ).
